About Women against Gun Violence (WAGV)

Founded in 1994 by former Los Angeles Police Commissioner, Ann Reiss Lane, WAGV educates the public, policymakers, and the media about the human, financial, and public health consequences of gun violence. Traditional approaches to fighting gun violence have been largely limited to policy development and lobbying government to pass more restrictive firearms laws. WAGV takes on gun violence as a women’s issue, and focuses on violence prevention on a community level. For more information: www.wagv.org
